

How to Make a FAQ Page: Top Tips

Once you've finished the research, you can start creating a FAQ page. As you have already realized, you need to carefully work out all the content and provide customers with straightforward and easy-to-use answers. What we recommend:

#1. Don't make up your own question. There is a reason why above we have listed proper FAQs' sources. Even if you think that the questions that you write will be useful, your customers may not follow the same opinion. Only with feedback from actual customers and testers, you will be able to fulfil your FAQ page with appropriate questions and answers.

#2. Make sure you are on the same page with your customers. You need to speak the same language and it means not only using Spanish, English, French or any other language that your target audience speaks but also taking into account the way they speak. If your target audience is teenagers, you do not need to look formal. You also can use fun language or jargon to create or support the uniqueness and make them understand that there is a real person who cares behind your FAQ page.

#3. Write to the point and be brief. Long and boring guides are not what you need on the FAQ page. Try to avoid complex constructions in your answers and provide clear reply without overloading it with unnecessary information. Your customers will be thankful for that.

#4. Make your FAQ easy to find. No one will be searching for a FAQ all over your website. If you don't want to share your customers with the competitors who have better website navigation, build an easy path to all the needed information.

#5. Create FAQ categories. Imagine that you have a hundred questions and all of them touch upon over twenty topics. How do you think your customers will find a question which is somewhere at the bottom? Sort questions in categories to simplify navigation and create a positive customer experience.

#6. Structure the FAQ section. Our advice is to start your FAQ from general questions like How to shop on your website or What products are available for purchasing online and then add questions focused on less common issues. The same situation is with categories. Begin with general categories and then add answers to the payment, security questions and others. Following a correct structure, you will improve the navigation as well as demonstrate your professional attitude.

#7. Set up FAQ search bar. This advice follows the previous ones and is also aimed to improve customer experience. Instead of viewing a list of questions, your customers can use the search bar to find what they need.

#8 Remember to update your FAQ page frequently. Your business is usually growing. You change the interface, add new categories, products and services improving the online store. All these changes should be reflected in your FAQ content. Keep the FAQ list up-to-date to avoid unexpected issues.

#9. Link you FAQ to the other relevant website pages. You FAQs do not only guide the customers but also help you promote your products. There can be links to your product pages, support, security, delivery guide as well as your email address or social networks like Instagram, Pinterest or others. The FAQ page should not become the last page that the customers visit on you website, it should be the beginning of their journey.

#10. Add a contact form to the bottom of your FAQ page. You can't predict all possible questions of your customers even if you carry out the most extensive research. Some answers might not be clear enough to some people. So, we recommend attaching contact information at the end of the page or contact form. It will be of extra help to your customers and show that you offer quality support.

Here are some examples of great FAQ pages:

Facebook FAQ page

Facebook Help Center has a small list of questions with the most typical issues. But the company also offers several guides in popular topics list as well as links to the Facebook Help Community and Help Center.

Popular Topics

www.befing.com

Facebook-FAQ-page.jpg 222.0 KB Download View full size

Google FAQ page

Besides their own FAQ page, Google strives to help other businesses, it offers the FAQ guidelines. There is a detailed explanation on how to create a FAQ page and what to write there.

Download View full size

Magento FAQ page

At first, the Magento FAQ page seems small due to a short list of themes. However, clicking on one of the topics, you reach a new page with a long list of related questions and answers. Besides, Magento adds their ad at the bottom of the page.

Download View full size

Shopify FAQ page

The Shopify FAQ is a perfect example of a page that doesn't need a search bar. There are only four topics with fourteen questions. To avoid scrolling, you can just pick on a necessary topic on the right and reach the information you need.

Nike FAQ page

The advantage of the Nike FAQ page is its informativeness. The company created a long list of questions with detailed answers. All questions also have links to related pages like Nike Code Leadership Standard, Standards for Managing Chemistry and others.

Download View full size

Source:
www.belvg.com